Call Screening

How it Helps You

Call Screening complements your existing Voicemail service by alerting you to a message as it's being recorded. You can decide to discreetly listen to the message live and interrupt it to speak to the caller, or, let the message continue into your voice mailbox for attention later.

Call Screening can save you time, works from any phone in your home and provides privacy when listening to messages.

How It Works

The service is not yet "activated" but can be turned on (or off) using your phone or at centurylink.com.

Using Call Screening:

- ▶ Ignore an incoming call and let it forward to Voicemail
- ▶ You'll be alerted that a message is being recorded when you hear a distinctive short-long-short ring sequence
- ▶ On a Caller ID phone, the display will read, "CenturyLink VMESAGE"
- ▶ Pick up the phone (or access speaker phone) and hear a prompt, "CenturyLink Call Screening is ON, to speak directly with the caller press any key."
- ▶ As you listen to the message being recorded, press any key to connect to the caller live, or, simply listen and let the message continue into your mailbox

To turn Call Screening on or off by phone:

- ▶ Access your Voicemail as you would to check for messages
- ▶ From the main menu, press [3] for Mailbox Settings and [9] for Call Screening and follow the prompts to enable or disable Call Screening

To turn Call Screening on or off online:

- ▶ Go to centurylink.com and log into your account

- ▶ Click on "My Services"
- ▶ Click on "View Voice Services" and select "Manage your Voicemail and/or Find Me Follow Me with Call Transfer"
- ▶ Click on "Settings" and under Telephone Access Settings, click on "Call Screening Settings" to turn the service on or off

Helpful Hints

- ▶ Wireless and One Voicemail customers can assign a distinctive ring tone to their wireless phone that alerts them to a live message being recorded
